

FORTIETH YEAR

BISMARCK, NORTH DAKOTA, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 31

PRICE FIVE CENTS

AN UNANIMOUS DECISION BY
SUPREME COURTHolds Section 9646 of the Compiled Laws of 1913 Unconstitutional

SEC. 9645 CONSTITUTIONAL

The Case Was An Appeal From
The District Court of Ward County

North Dakota's supreme court, in an unanimous opinion, held section 9646 of the Compiled Laws of 1913, unconstitutional while holding that section 9645 was constitutional. The case was an appeal from the district court of Ward county. Two actions were in the case, one, and that part of the case, dealing with the abatement of a nuisance is specifically upheld. Section 9646 provided for the seizure of property, it was claimed without due action of law, and this claim the court upheld. The result is that while the law, making arrangements for a temporary injunction in the case of a bawdy house nuisance is upheld the property cannot be seized without due process of law.

Question of Right.

Speaking of section 9645, the court said:

In our opinion there can be no serious question of the right of the legislature to provide for the issuance of temporary injunctions in such cases. Without further discussion, we hold that the statute in question is clearly valid insofar as it authorizes an action to be maintained by the state's attorney and a temporary injunction to be issued at the commencement of the action which will prevent the continued maintenance of the nuisance pending the final judgment.

But that portion of the order which directs the seizure of the premises stands upon a different legal foundation. It is based upon a separate section of the statute, namely, Section 9636. It is contended that the above statute is unconstitutional in that it directs the taking of property without due process of law. It is urged that under this statute, without any prior adjudication whatsoever of unlawful use a person may be dispossessed of his home, and thus deprived of his property until his right to continue possession can be determined. It is well settled that the constitutionality of a statute does not depend upon what is done under it, nor how it has been applied in a particular case but upon what may be done under its authority. Nor is it permissible to show that if due process were in fact observed in the particular case the same result would have been reached in the long run.

It will be noticed that the statute provides for no hearing of any sort in advance of the seizure by the officer. All of the anterior proceedings are wholly ex parte. The mere presentation of an affidavit, sworn to by any person stating that certain premises are transgressing upon the premises creates a mandatory duty upon the part of the judge to issue a warrant commanding the officer to take and hold possession to abide the final judgment in the action. In our opinion this statute is clearly unconstitutional in that it directs the taking of property without due process of law in violation of both the state and federal constitutions, and the eighteenth section of the state constitution which says that:

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, effects against unreasonable searches, and seizures, as shall not be violated and no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, particularly describing the place to be searched and the person and things to be seized."

WAR TAX SLIPS
TO BE GIVEN
PASSENGERSConductors Will Supply All
Passengers With Slips To Get Refunds

In order that the patrons of the Northern Pacific railway company may have all that is coming to them in the way of refund on war tax while en route to their respective destinations during the night of December 31, the management has provided the conductors with slips of identification and other necessary information thereon so that the passengers may get a refund on their tickets.

In a message received by Agent W. A. McDonald from A. M. Cleland, general passenger agent the following instruction is given:

St. Paul Dec 31 1921—The Northern Pacific Railway with its usual regard for the interest of its patrons has provided its conductors with slips to be given passengers en route at midnight of Dec 31 which will show form and number of tickets held and the station passed at midnight so as to help them in securing a refund of that portion of the war tax which accrues after midnight. Advise all agents.

Each British family it is estimated pays an average of $15 a week in tax

SID SAYS:

If You Expect Any Miracles in 1922 You
Have Got to Perform Them.

(EDITOR AMERICAN MAGAZINE)

The New Year is at hand. But January 1 and the days to follow will be no different from December 31 and the days behind, unless you make them different.

One of the silliest of human delusions is the idea that time will bring everything out all right. Haven't you heard people get that off—and then proceed to do nothing whatever with time? The most pitiable business failure I know of was due to a self-deluded individual in the concern who did nothing but counsel the great things that time was going to do for the business. "Just wait," was his advice. "What we need is time. Leave it to time." So they did. And in time the business decayed.

Foolish people leave all sorts of things to time. Some leave the question of ill health to time. Others leave the question of thrift to time. Only today I heard of a twenty-five-thousand-dollar-a-year man, right here in New York, who at fifty is spending every nickel he makes—saving nothing. I suppose he thinks that God cares for the ravens, and that God will take care of him. God will no doubt care for him—just as He cares for the ravens. But ravens don't live until they lose their jobs because of old age. Neither do they require steam heated apartments, underclothes, and hair mattresses to sleep on.

Left to itself, time is nothing but a grand little passer. Look how it passes in the desert and in the Arctic circle. Plenty of time—but no potatoes.

Don't leave anything to Father Time. He won't do anything for you. He can't. All he does is to provide you room in which to perform. If you sit in the corner and wait for him to do your job, you'll be disappointed.

Father Time is only a sort of janitor in the employ of the Almighty. He sees the tenants come and go. But he has nothing to do with any of them, cares nothing about them. When you enter the arena he may bow and say, "Good Morning." When you check out seventy or eighty years later he may say, "Good night." That, however, will be the extent of his interest in you, or knowledge of you. He sees billions pass in and out the gate—dunces, mediocres and bright boys like Caesar and Willie Shakespeare. But they all look alike to him.

New York Dec 31—By Associated Press.—Business prospects for 1922 are in general hopeful according to statements by prominent bankers made public today by the American Bankers Association.

The future of business and finance in the United States is encouraging, said Thomas McAdams, president of the Bankers Association. GOVERNOR'S
NEW YEAR'S GREETING

Work, thrift and co-operation are the elements Governor R. A. Nestos wished for the people of North Dakota when asked today for a new year's greeting to the people of the state which follows:

"We stand at the threshold of a new year. It is ours to make it a year of steady progress in promoting the welfare of the state or to continue 'bound in shallows and misery' for another twelve months. 'May we, as a people dedicate ourselves to a year of work, of thrift and of friendly co-operation for the highest interests of our state and people."

If this becomes the dominant spirit in our state and all our forces are united in renewed hope and courage in the effort to find a solution of perplexing problems, we will find that fundamentally we respond and that our resources in manhood and material wealth are the great that the return to a condition of prosperity and resulting happiness will be very certain and rapid.

Dickinson Dec 31—Mrs. Glen Casady Dickinson led most of the important conferences at the North Dakota Farm Bureau meeting held at Fargo this week. This action was taken after the charge had been made that farmers in various parts of the state had been defrauded in making shipments of potatoes and other commodities.

The delegates reiterated their belief in the value of the federation in assisting to dispose of farm products to the best advantage.

Slope delegates who attended the next were Mrs. Glen Casady, Dickinson, F. A. Vaser, Mott, John C. Smith, Mandan and Peter S. Wilson, Deach.

HEART BALM IS

WHO JILTED HERSpent $2,600 To Reach His Mental Plane—Then Dis-
appointedDANISH BAPTIST MINISTER FACES
BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT—IN ST. PAUL

St. Paul Dec 31—All of love's efforts and $2,600 worth of education proved inadequate to qualify Agnes M. Rosenkelde, formerly of St. Paul, for the exacting functions and duties of a wife of a Baptist clergyman, it is indicated in allegations filed in a Council Bluffs, Iowa, court.

Miss Rosenkelde, who was born in St. Paul and whose father once conducted a store here met Rev. Thomas Hansen, the minister, when he went from Des Moines to preach in Council Bluffs.

Miss Rosenkelde was a store keeper's daughter and through operation of the unexciting destiny that moulds the lives of simple folks she grew up in the honorable but humble trade of the family. When first she heard the gifted evangelist she was a clerk in a dry goods store.

Suited Self for Pastor's Wife.

Physically she was all that an ardent lover might desire, and in the rough she was material from which might be fashioned a suitable wife for a clergyman, the minister told her, according to the allegations in the breach of promise suit. But Rev. Mr. Hansen urged that she equip herself intellectually and spiritually for the high estate of a help-mate to a minister, she charges. Accordingly she enrolled in the Minneapolis Danish Baptist Bible school and studied faithfully to attain her lover's intellectual plane. The years in school cost her $2,600, she charges.

It appeared for a time that her efforts were to be successful and that the diploma from the Bible school would qualify her for an uncommon marriage.

Wedding Day: Learns of Failure.

But on the morning of the wedding day she learned that the diploma, although a milestone on the highway of intellectual attainment, was not far enough removed from the dry goods store.

The telephone rang and Rev. Mr. Hansen was on the wire. He had met another young woman, it is alleged whose "mental development was superior and so much more inspirational" that he felt that to be linked to Miss Rosenkelde would bring only physical and material satisfaction.

The whole distressing experience Miss Rosenkelde confides to the Council Bluffs court, is worth not less than $50,000.

THE BUSINESS
OUTLOOK FOR
1922 IS GOODAfter 20 Months of Depression, Industries Seem On The Mend

FARMING NOT INCLUDED

Wholesale Prices of Farm Products Have Dropped The Most

BY ALBERT APPLE

Chicago, Dec. 31—The business outlook for 1922 will be a much better year than 1921.

Business depression began with the collapse of the silk market in May, 1920. After 20 months on the down grade the basic industries, with exception of farming, seem definitely on the mend.

The bottom of depression was reached in July, 1921, when iron and steel—the key industry—began climbing.

Prices Lower

Price deflation made rapid strides during 1921.

Striking an average in the wholesale markets, you now can buy for $1.45 what cost $1 in 1913 and $2.72 in May, 1920, the peak of inflation. The figure was $1.77 in January, 1921.

Cost of living also deflated materially during 1921. The wage earner now pays about $163 to get what cost him $100 before the war, $205 in May, 1920 and $181 in January, 1921.

Wholesale prices of farm products have dropped most with metals and metal products second.

The short cotton crop boosted the price in 1921. This was counterbalanced by slump in wheat and corn prices. Average farm prices are only about 10 per cent higher than in 1913.

Total American exports slumped from $8,228,454,014 in 1920 to about $4,500,000,000 in 1921.

The falling off, however, was mostly due to lower prices.

In weight or volume of business, exports of raw materials in 1921 increased 34 per cent over 1920. Exports of foodstuffs gained 57 per cent. Manufactured goods decreased 4 per cent in weight.

Rapid Changes

During 1921, banks that are members of the Federal Reserve System reduced their loans about $2,000,000,000.

Bank clearings in the United States during 1921 totaled around $350,000,000,000. This was about 22 per cent less than 1920 due largely to lower prices. Clearings in 1921, however, were more than twice as much as in 1913.

The steel industry starts the new year, running 50 per cent capacity. Last July it was down to 18 per cent capacity. Steel men look for the next boom to start with heavy buying by the railroads.

Copper industry may revive before steel. Stocks of surplus copper in the United States have been reduced 40 per cent in the last six months.

Gold stock increased $800,000,000 in 1921.

Building is 45 per cent better than a year ago expressed in money spent. Much larger, allowing for price reductions.

New Companies

New companies incorporated during 1921 had total capital stock of about $7,700,000,000.

Nearly 19,000 business firms failed during 1921. That's more than twice as many as in 1920 also greatest since 1915.

In rough figures railroads in 1921 moved 32 cars of freight for 37 in 1920 and 34 in 1919.

President Says None to Blame
But All Agree Some Cor-

Washington, Dec. 31—(By the Associated Press.)—Acting at the direction of President Harding, Secretary Wallace was extending invitations today to former organizations and representatives of industries associated directly or indirectly with agriculture to attend a national conference here probably within a month to "suggest practical ways of improvement" for "the severe agricultural depression which exists throughout the land."

The National Agricultural conference which is to be called by Sec. Wallace in compliance with the request of President Harding probably will meet in Washington about January 16, and be composed of between 100 and 150 delegates.

The president's request that such a conference be called was announced yesterday in a letter to the Secretary in which he declared that while "no one will pretend that the present condition could have been avoided, some of us are willing to agree that there ought to have been some correct and constructive step taken to remedy the severe hardship under which so important a portion of our productive citizenship is struggling."

He suggested that the conference, for which no date has as yet been set, nor a complete invitation list made up, might divide its work in two sections, one for consideration of "the present day difficulties" and the other to work out general policies for the future.

Brilliant Brooklyn Attorney
Who Took Own Life on Eve of Promotion in New York

E. J. Taylor, well known educator and deputy superintendent in the office of Miss Nielson, was a class mate of Everett Caldwell, noted and brilliant Brooklyn attorney, who committed suicide on the eve of his promotion to district attorney at Brooklyn, New York.

Mr. Taylor says that the noted attorney was a remarkable student of law and had a fascinating personality together making him an outstanding figure in his profession. Both attended school at their home town, Canton, New York and later at St. Lawrence University. The news of his death reached Canton, his home town Christmas morning and is reported to have saddened the entire city. He was eminently popular and his tragic death was deeply mourned in Wanton. He was a son of the late Sheriff Caldwell of Canton. He had officiated as assistant district attorney and for many years was connected with the office.

Mr. Taylor said that Mr. Caldwell was of a highly nervous temperament. He had just been appointed district attorney, a very responsible office which Mr. Caldwell is said to have not been particularly anxious to assume. He had recently suffered a nervous breakdown and it is believed that is what caused him to take his life.

WHAT ORIENTAL DANCES REALLY ARE.

Pola Negri, as Slave Dancer, Shows Intriguing Steps.

The weird dances of the Orient rhythmic and undulating, are portrayed effectively in "One Arabian Night," an Associated First National attraction which will be the feature at the Eltinge theater for three days beginning Monday.

Pola Negri the star of the production as the desert waif, is the dancer of a troupe of strolling players, and by that token the featured performer. There are roars of applause when she steps out of the dressing tent upon the little stage, and encore after encore brings her back repeatedly. And how she dances! Suffice it to say that in addition to her histrionic talent she is one of the best dancers in the world having studied for many years with the Imperial Russian Ballet.

In another scene Zuleika, the queen of the harem performs the "Dance of Love and Victory" gyrating about her lover, who sits on a mountain of silken pillows in the harem, into which he has been smuggled.

Both dances are terpsichorean masterpieces.

TOM MIX WINS WITH A "SURPRISE" PICTURE

Tom Mix surprised his admirers last night at the Bismarck Theater, where he opened in his latest William Fox production "Trailin'." In the first part of the picture he appeared in a dinner coat and later in gentlemanly riding togs. As soon as the story would allow him, however, he got into the far West and then the inhabitants of his immediate movie sphere stepped lively to keep out of his way. There were a few who endeavored to interfere with the hero, but they found the interference far from wholesome.

The novelty of the story, together with the star's riding and shooting and fighting, made the minutes seem like seconds during the showing.

The story involves the mystery surrounding a man's death, and the solution of this mystery, and the tragedy involves too several characters in a maze that persists until the final scene.

"Trailin'" is a photoplay worth seeing and Mix, in his display of versatility is a surprise even to his warmest admirers.

Bismarck Team Win By Score
32 to 12—100 Per Cent
Victorious on Tour

The Bismarck high school basketball team again carried away the honors on their tour and are yet two percent victorious. They defeated the Lisbon high school team 32 to 12 last night at the Lisbon gymnasium. A large crowd attended the game and marked enthusiasm among the fans helped to make the game all the more exciting. The boys will go to Duane in this evening where they will meet the Enderlin high school team.

Coach Swanish has a confidence in winning the Enderlin game this evening.

The game at Lisbon was about the largest attended game on their present tour. Burke made 5 baskets, Klaut 1, Allison 1 and Brown 1. Allison made 4 fouls. At the end of the first half the game stood 16 to 4 in favor of Bismarck.

OF ASHLEY
B. B. QUINT

Ashley, Dec. 31.—In a very hard fought game between Bismarck and Ashley played here Wednesday night Bismarck defeated the Ashley quint by a score of 25 to 5. The game was played at the local gymnasium with a well attended crowd. Both teams were greatly handicapped because much of the floor was taken up by the enthusiastic basketball fans. The best part of the game was staged during the first half the score being 14 to 5 in the favor of B. B. S. In the second half Bismarck played more on a defensive game and held the locals scoreless. Much credit is due to Coach Swanish's basketball aggregation, they are a nice bunch of players and show good training and coaching.

After spending a very disagreeable and unfortunate night as Coach Swanish said "that the boys are a fine bunch of players and are the best team he has played this year. With a large gym and proper coaching, this town ought to be able to send out a team of championship caliber." Dohrovinsky and Medved at Ashley played a consistent game holding the Bismarck basketball to 5 to 10, to the lowest score they have this year. A Doerr and Hen at forward played a hard game but were unable to break through the larger and heavier guards.

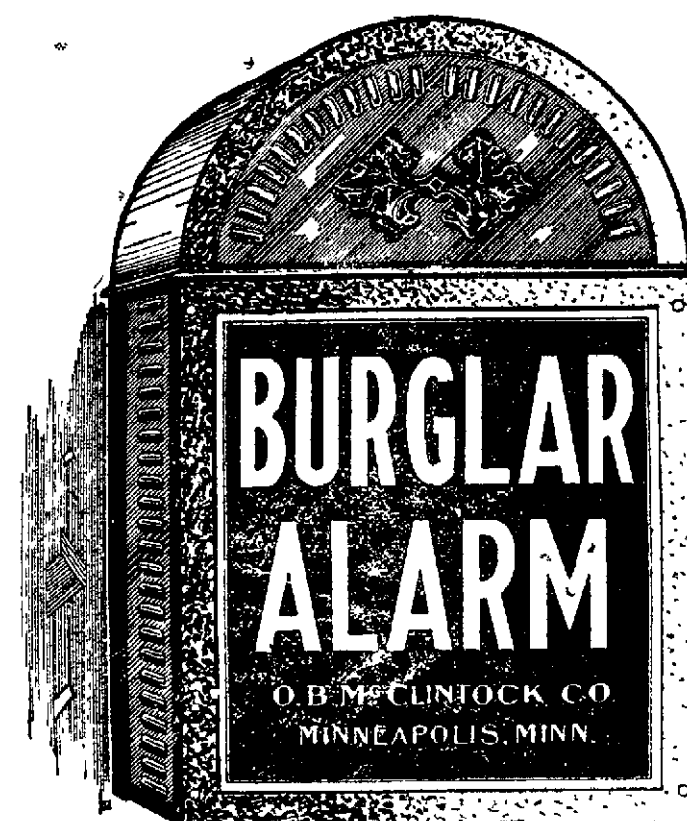

Ed Doerr at center was the individual star on the local team. He rates high as a fast runner, tent all around player and is undoubtedly the best player in this part of the state. This is his last year in high school but intends to follow up athletic in college next year when he intends to go to the University of North Dakota. The schedule is not yet completed and the high school will therefore challenge any town of this size for a game. Schools on the schedule are Napoleon, Kulm, Wessick, Bismarck, Eureka, Lutheran college.

"CANVASSING BOARDS DO NOT POSSESS JUDICIAL FUNCTIONS," SAYS THE N. D. SUPREME COURT

Five Judges Make Clear Why They Refused To "Call Off" The Recall

SEC. OF STATE'S DUTY Is Discussed In The Opinion Handed Down By Justice Bronson

Five judges of the North Dakota Supreme Court concurred in the opinion, recently made, and supporting an earlier verbal announcement, that the application for an original writ to enjoin the state canvassing board from canvassing the returns of the recall election had been denied. The court, in reaching its decision, was compelled to go to the laws of general elections for guidance because of meagre instructions in the recall election law itself.

"In the cognate law, existing prior to and at the time of the adoption of the recall constitutional amendment," says Justice Bronson in the opinion, "the duty is imposed upon the secretary of state, concerning initiative and referendum petitions, to pass upon each petition and if he finds it insufficient to notify the committee for the petitioners and allow 20 days for correction or amendment. His decision in regard to any such petition is made subject to review by this court. Article 25, Constitutional Amendment. It is further provided in such article that if the sufficiency of such petition is being reviewed at the time the ballot is being prepared, the Secretary of State shall at the time the ballot is being prepared place the measure on a ballot and no subsequent decision shall invalidate such measure. Any such election is approved by a majority of the votes cast thereon."

Invalid Petitions

"The petitioners assert," continues the opinion after discussing the duties of the Secretary of State, "that a valid election cannot exist based upon invalid petitions; that the existence of sufficient petitions for a recall are a condition precedent to the calling and holding of a valid special election and any election not so called and held is necessarily void. It remains to be seen whether this premise, asserted by the petitioners, was correct based upon the present application and the constitutional amendment concerned."

"For purposes of illustration it may be supposed that the sufficiency of the recall petitions, as to the number or qualifications of the signers, thereon, had been questioned before the holding of the election, either before the Secretary of State or in an appropriate proceeding, and it had been found that by reason of duplications of signatures, lack of legal signatures and irregularities of procedure such recall petitions contained 1,000, 3,000, or even 10,000 signatures less than the number required by the constitutional amendment. Would it then be asserted or contended that no recall election could be held if sufficient and qualified signatures additional were submitted and the petitions refiled? Neither the constitutional amendment nor any supplementary legislation provides when such petitions must be signed or filed. Furthermore, for purposes of illustration, it may be supposed that the recall election, the officers sought to be recalled were retained by a majority vote of the electors similar to that by which they were defeated. The Constitutional amendment provides that, after one such petition and special election, no further recall petition shall be filed against the same officer for the term for which he was elected. Would it be asserted or contended that, subsequently, recall petitions can be filed against the same officer on the ground that the recall petitions previously filed were invalid and the election held thereupon void? If petitioners position be correct the election in either event must be set aside; further, additional and qualified signers might be secured, the petition again refiled, another election called and held and then, again, the sufficiency of the petitions might again become subject to attack for further insufficiency and, if so found, such election must be set aside and so, an infinitum. The petitioners do not now question the legality of the election itself or specify any irregularities in the conduct of such election. They question only the sufficiency of the petitions. As hereinbefore stated, it must be apparent that, pursuant to the recall constitutional amendment, the electors of the state have the right to propose and file recall petitions; the electors of the state also have the right to object to the sufficiency of such recall petitions either before the Secretary of State or by resort to the courts. These are apparent and concurrent rights. Agencies for the exercise and determination of these rights anterior to the time of holding a recall election, have been provided. Necessarily, these agencies which have the authority to question the sufficiency of recall petitions prior to a recall election, must be a determining and final authority. Otherwise, it follows that the respect-

NEW SIGNPOSTS TO PROSPERITY ARE APPARENT

Says President Joseph Griffin of the Chicago Board of Trade

FREIGHT IS TOO HIGH And There Should Be a Revision of Taxation To Encourage Investment

Chicago, Dec. 31.—Old-fashioned American courage is coming to the surface, President Joseph P. Griffin of the Chicago Board of Trade noted in his annual review of business conditions today. He declared that new signposts to prosperity are apparent.

"This rising tide of faith and confidence is mirrored in many industries," his reviews says. "Courage is driving out the fear that has been shackling production—a fear engendered as much by political as by economic events."

"General readjustment of price levels is going forward in a most orderly manner, which is a most hopeful sign. This will result in gradual lifting of the burden of price inequalities. It will stimulate buying and production and absorb the army of idle men and women."

"There should be a reduction in freight rates, and revision of taxation in a manner that would encourage investment. Freight rates and tax laws constitute a barrier of paramount importance."

"From the day price deflation hit agricultural products the grain trade has struggled as never before against elements that tend to upset the natural operation of the marketing machinery."

"These menacing elements have included widespread and usually selfish criticism of the whole grain distributing system; introduction in legislatures and in Congress of a score of proposed laws with the single purpose of wrecking the marketing system and substituting experimental methods; intemperate marketing by farmers at critical periods, and the withholding of grain on the advice of professional organizers at times when the surplus could, in a measure, have been absorbed at greater profit to the farmer."

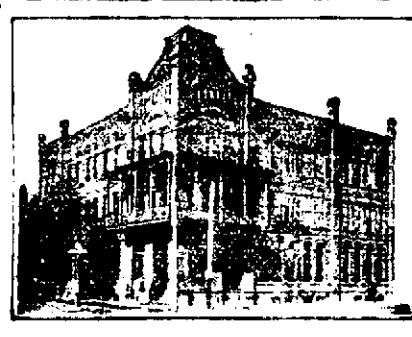

"In later years producers will realize that the grain exchanges performed a remarkable economic service. They made possible a ready market for the grain grower, at a time when wool growers and producers of some other commodities were absolutely without a market."

"Fortunately the sweeping provisions of the many regulatory measures were not enacted into law. But the constant battle to prevent such enactments kept the entire trade in a turmoil throughout the year."

"Competent speculation has been virtually driven out of the market. Country bankers were forcing farmers to liquidate and pay their debts. Farmers were becoming panicky. They rushed their grain to market in a frenzied manner."

"The movement was extremely large in spite of the fact that we did not have an unusually large crop. The tremendous marketing was in excess of the combined purchasing power of our domestic consumers, foreign governments and speculators. Speculation always has been a bolster to prices. But it had been largely killed off and its absence was indeed a serious blow."

"So the grain trade's greatest hope is that 1922 will see a more sympathetic attitude by law-making bodies toward business generally. With this co-operation the exchanges will strive to maintain the high standard of efficiency which has made possible the distribution of grain at a lower cost between producer and consumer than exists in any other staple commodity."

Attorney General Sveinbjorn Johnson has received from one of his constituents the mimeographed copy of a letter from a North Dakota Finance Corporation in which the offer is made to buy hail warrants of 1921 at 20 percent below their face value. The inference was that this particular company had mailed a copy of the letter to every man in the state awarded a hail loss. The letter was sent to Mr. Johnson with a request for information as to the possibilities of the proposed loans upon the face value.

SUBSTITUTES IN RUSSIA

Moscow, Dec. 31.—Every day life in Russia is a very practical lesson in self help. When the central heating apparatus fails, and heating plants which have not been repaired for seven years often fail, one buys a sheet-iron stove and pipe in the market, thrusts a pipe out through his window, searches for high-priced wood in the markets, cuts it and builds a fire.

If the electric light bulbs burn out, or the fuses blow, or the wire wear out, one goes to the market for the necessary supplies, gets out one's pen-knife and becomes one's own electrician.

It is a great tragedy when shoes or clothing wear out or require repairing. Tailors have no cloth and shoe makers have no leather. These can be found only in the street markets and it requires many hours to place a pair of shoes and sufficient leather for half-soles in the hands of a cobbler who will sew them on.

The lack of serviceable new cloth in the markets has put worn clothing at a premium. It is greedily bought by men and women who have it turned and renovated. Tailors are so busy with this sort of work that it frequently requires several weeks to have repairs made.

Plumbers and tinner and carpenters and painters utterly lack supplies. Small contractors can frequently supply workmen to make building repairs of minor character, but they are seldom able to provide the required materials. This necessitates hours of search through the street stalls scattered along miles of boulevards. The capital, organization and confidence which are necessary to conduct the assembling of large stocks of building material are lacking.

SATURDAY EVENING LETTER

(By Justice J. E. Robinson.)

December 30, 1921. All hail the glad New Year. May it be a year of economic reforms, so that by thrift and industry every person may have a chance to secure the comforts of life. The inherent right of every person is to acquire, possess and protect property and to pursue and obtain safety and happiness. To protect those rights, that is the main purpose of civil government. "Civil liberty is natural liberty so far restrained by human laws, and no further, than is necessary and expedient for the general good of the whole." The first duty of the state is to protect every person against theft, fraud, violence and every form of tyranny. The tyranny of a majority may exceed that of a Nero. Robbery by a majority, under the guise of law, may exceed that of a thousand Robin Hoods. In a free state the people have a right to enjoy civil liberty. There is no warrant for tyranny. The majority have no right to decree that any man shall stand on his head or be tethered out and restrained of his liberty like a bull on a rope in a pasture. It is only when someone like Kinsz Nebuchadnezzar and Belshazzar have transgressed the laws of civil liberty that he may be stalked out and forced to eat straw and grass like an ox.

The new administration gives promise of success. We hear the voice of one crying in the wilderness: Prepare ye the way of the Lord. Make his path straight. The new governor proclaims that public money is not to be lavishly squandered; that public servants must do their duty faithfully or quit their jobs. He sounds a note of timely warning, a command to break every yoke and let the oppressed go free. He declares there must be an adjustment of the tax burdens, and that the people may no longer be robbed under the guise of taxing them. His admonitions are re-echoed by the press and the big dailies that heretofore never gave a note of warning and never saw the handwriting on the wall. Of course it is better late than never. Now all agree that we must bell the cat. We must scale down and liquidate the tax burdens, cancel the illegal taxes, the costs and the penalties. To accomplish all that we have only to adopt several good measures at the next primary election. The first step is to formulate each measure, cause the printing of several hundred copies, and secure the signatures of ten thousand or more legal voters. Then it must be filed with the secretary of state at least ninety days before the primary. Ten thousand electors at large may propose any measure by initiative petition. Every Goodbye, then, 1921! You were a good friend, in the main; You brought a little more of fun, And happiness, than woe and pain. I don't think that we can complain About the deal we got from you; Goodbye—oh, here's your hat and cane!—Hello there, 1922!

We greet you very gladly, son! Now that we've seen the old year wane, We'll watch you wax. You have begun In hopeful style; can you maintain Your present pace without a strain? If so there's much that you can do Which in the past we've sought in vain—Hello there, 1922!

Perhaps you'll teach us how to shun Grim wars that split the world in twain; And by your magic may be spun About the world a golden skein Of love and peace. Ah, we are faint To have a hope like that come true, A hope that thrills the heart and brain. Hello there, 1922!

initiative procedure at the primary and at the next general election. Do not then stand idly waiting; Do not fear to do and dare.

Our Court has discovered a simple and easy way of keeping up with its work and making it easy. It is done by holding monthly terms of Court, hearing arguments and deciding every case while it is fresh in memory. Then our judges are learning, during the business hours of each day, to keep at their work till it is finished and by asking only when there is no work undone. We are learning to write shorter and better decisions and to avoid the slipshod method of copying records and evidence. We are improving our style of composition. We no longer write "He made, executed and delivered to John Doe a promissory note." We say "He made to John Doe a promissory note."

Here is an answer to some questions by Hon. Arthur P. Rugg, Chief Justice of Massachusetts:

"Their Judge—Answering your letter, our Court has five judges elected for six years. We do not have a pres-

The biggest social event of the season will be staged tonight at the McKenzie hotel and Patterson's hall. It will be in the form of the McKenzie hotel annual New Year's party, chief among which will be the approved quality and quantity of the music, the increased number and volume of the noise-makers and last but by no means least the 'break of day breakfast' to be served between 5 and 6 o'clock a. m. in Patterson hall.

Dancing will begin in Patterson hall promptly at 9:30 and will continue as long as there's anyone left who desires to "trip the light fantastic" dinner will be served in the main dining room of the McKenzie hotel at midnight, and a specially prepared menu will be offered for the delectation of the guests, who but fail to readily outnumber those of previous years, judging from the reservations already made.

An Old-Fashioned Girl
(Letters to Lovers)
By Winona
There are a few old-fashioned girls left in the world, and they are not having a very good time, writes one of them.

"If a girl can find contentment at home, if she takes pleasure in knowing how to prepare a good meal, if she prefers a book to bridge, if she would rather go to a concert than to a dance, she is called 'old fashioned,' and the boys let her alone!"

"Well, I am one of them. And although I am not 20 years old, I can see very well that I am destined to travel along life's pathway alone and starving for a little bit of love."

"I suppose that deep in every girl's heart is the wish to love and be loved. I've heard girls talk. I know some who have gone to universities, not to study, but solely to pick out husbands. Usually they succeeded."

"Well, I was brought up to suppose that a man must do the wooing. That notion is as old-fashioned as my love for books. In spite of my longing for a husband and a home, I want to be wooed and I could not dangle my prettiness before the boys as I see some of the girls doing."

"Now can you tell me what is going to take the place of this deep need of the husband, and the home I never will have?"

"I don't want to be a missionary. I don't want to be a welfare worker. I don't want to go into business. What is left for me to do?"

A bachelor girl can adopt children. Many adopt more than one. They give them names and take care of them. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family. They are just like the children of the family.

these little "sons" and "daughters" the nicest homes, the best of educations, and the sincerest affection. But even so, something is wanting in the life of a child reared in a spinster's home.

And it is something very important. It is the influence and the example of the man.

So far as comforting the mother-heart goes, these babies give satisfaction. So far as mothering goes, these unmarried women often excel the wife who is fortunate enough to mother her own babes. But the lack of the paternal influence may hamper a child in ways which even the psychologists have not yet defined adequately.

For this reason, the European style of marriage which is based on respect rather than love seems to have some admirable advantages. By means of it, the woman maintains her keen need of belonging to a clan or family and her pride in the future of her family, as she sees it in the lives of her own children.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1875)

1922

The clock strikes 12. Horns blow. Home brewers pop corks. Another year ends, fades into eternity. Enter, 1922.

Old 1921 was a bad year for the average pocket-book. There have been worse years. But, taking it by-and-large, there will be few mourners as 1921 totters off the stage.

The new year, 1922, is a promising one. Prospects are that business will continue improving. The world is saner, getting its balance restored, recovering from the war.

What does the new year mean to you personally?

For one thing, it means that you are a year older.

Business houses are taking inventory of goods on hand, checking up their books, finding out what was accomplished, what not, in 1921.

Why not take an inventory of yourself? Was it a good year, or a bad one, for you? Did you make progress, slip back or stand still? How does your lot compare with January 1, 1921? What mistakes did you make—what errors of judgment—that can be avoided during 1922?

On the answers to these questions, base your New Year resolutions.

Let the birth of the new year be a re-birth of your ambitions, hopes and the finer emotions that make life worth while.

ILLUSIONS

In the wake of Christmas, parents' wrath descends on a New York school teacher. She committed the unpardonable sin—told her pupils, "There isn't any Santa Claus."

Is it right to deceive children about old Santa, Easter Bunny and Jack Frost? By all means! Childhood, like maturity, needs illusions to keep it ever striving onward, and to add color and romance to the Machine Age.

Chasing butter flies is a pleasure, even if you fail to catch them.

FORD

Henry Ford's railroad, the D. T. & I., took in $652,438 in October, for hauling freight and passengers. Out of this, it made a net operating revenue or profit of $120,723.

In October, 1920, this road's gross revenue was $698,053. That was $45,615 more than the revenue in October, 1921, but instead of a profit there was a deficit of $126,492.

The D. T. & I. does less business than a year ago, but is $247,215 better off in one month. Other months have been making similar good showings. Make your own comment.

CIDER

Cause for alarm. Census bureau says farmers made only 13,365,805 gallons of cider in 1919, compared with 32,583,998 gallons in 1909.

This look like one of the great American industries is going to decay. Figures for 1921 probably would show a further falling-off in cider.

The little joker is that an enormous amount of hard cider is made on the sly and doesn't show up in the statistics. Almost anyone making hard cider is apt to sample it frequently. Hence the figures he furnishes are bound to be muddled.

HAVE TO MOVE FAST

Into New York harbor comes an old-time sailing vessel—the General George C. Hogg, a three-masted schooner. She brings a cargo of mahogany logs from the African Gold Coast. The trip took 121 days—four months.

A page from the past! A modern steam freighter would have made the same trip in a tenth of the time.

Yet it is only a few generations since three-masted schooners were the fastest ships.

A few more generations, and the captains of gigantic passenger and freight airplanes will laugh at occasional slow steam freighters, survivors of 1921.

Same in everything. Ten years from now, the world will look back amusedly at the old-fashioned way of 1921. The 20th century is cutting the shackles of time and space.

You have to move fast, these days, to keep from getting run over.

TOYS

As the Christmas tree dries up and "falls off," study the kiddies with their toys—and learn much philosophy.

What toy appealed most to the boy? Probably it reveals the secret of that interesting mystery, the career he will follow.

Little girls are just as fond of their doll-babies as their great-grand-mothers were. That explodes all fears that home life is rocking at its foundations.

SALESMANSHIP

Every business man is saying, "It's harder to sell stuff than it used to be."

Yes, and it will be, for years to come. The golden age of salesmanship is at hand.

The whole world is heading into a period of close competition, and slender profit margins. This is sensed by those who are preparing great consolidations of independent steel companies.

Personal salesmanship is needed now, more than ever before. So, also, the next decade. Needed even more is collective salesmanship—advertising.

NEW

Most musicians believe that no modern violin can compare with those made several centuries ago by Antonius Stradivarius and other master violin makers.

A crowd of super-musicians recently sat in darkness in the Conservatoire in Paris. A Stradivarius was played, then a modern violin. They voted in favor of the modern fiddle, then were amazed that it wasn't the Stradivarius.

Music isn't the only field in which people swear by the old-time stuff, when the new thing is better.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

AN IRISH "OPPOSITION"

Several ingenious and subtle theories are current in regard to the wrangles in the dail eireann. One of them is that it is necessary in the Irish parliament to have an opposition party, and that this is what we now see in the process of formation. There is his majesty's opposition at Westminster and there must also be one, it is said, at Dublin. In South Africa, after the Union was established, an opposition party based itself on the demand for entire independence, and why should not the same thing happen in Ireland?

It might seem unnecessary to go painfully about the creation of an opposition in the Irish free state. If it is Irish, there will infallibly be opposition. The tradition of being "agin" the government is too strong to be broken in a day. But in the split at Dublin there is more than a parliamentary or party significance. It shows that the semblance of complete unity of opinion in the South of Ireland has been forced and artificial. The moment that the pressure of warfare is removed and the opportunity of free debate offered, we see the Sinn Feilers dividing like other men. This will have its effect in the North of Ireland as well as in the South. It may tend to confirm the belief of some Ulster politicians that, if they go into the All-Ireland parliament, they will be able to hold the balance of power between the two factions of the Southerners.

The disputes and divisions and delays at Dublin have unquestionably chilled the first enthusiasm caused by the view of an agreement between Ireland and England. But these perhaps should have been expected among a romantic race. Those closest to the facts are confident that ratification of the treaty, whether by action of the dail or by a popular vote, is certain to come. Even De Valera, in his alternative proposals, is said to have abandoned at last the idea of an Irish republic absolutely independent. That would leave open only the question of how best the rights and privileges of Ireland can be secured. On that point the arguments of Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins, who negotiated and now demand the treaty, are conclusive.—New York Times.

LET'S HOPE THIS ONE REACHES THE GOAL

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

The two balloons searched Nancy and Nick for pins or for any sharp things that might hurt the people in their country, but all they found was Nick's little pen knife which they said he could keep if he would promise not to open it.

"Well, that's over!" said Buskins, the fairyman. "Now please run and get our steeds. Nancy and Nick and I have many places to go and we are just getting started. Off with you, Blue Jumper and Reddy Bounce! Go to my stables in the town of Balloonstick and bring us something to ride upon."

Away bounced the fat jolly balloons and in a second or two they were back with three large Fourth of July balloons made of paper. One was a green elephant, another a pink pig and the third a blue poodle, each one puffed out with importance, and "sad and dazed and ready to go."

"Hop on, kiddies!" called Buskins, springing to the back of the green paper elephant.

"Don't be afraid. These creatures are stronger than they appear to be. Like everything else in Fairyland, their appearance is deceiving and Patsy Pink-Eye and Bowsy Blue-Boy will take you anywhere you wish to go."

So Nancy scrambled upon the pig (which bore her plump weight very nicely) and Nick settled himself on the blue poodle.

Instantly their steeds started down the road, covering the ground at a wonderful gallop, Blue Jumper and Reddy Bounce bounding along in the rear.

"Where are we going?" called Nancy humbly to Buskins who was leading the procession.

"To the nursery," called back Buskins. "It's about a mile ahead to the left. Just follow me."

So they all galloped on. Nick looked back once over his shoulder to see what had become of the little elephant. It was patiently waiting.

Happy New Year-Good Luck

North Dakota has emerged from the financial depression of the past year in a manner that reflects the greatest credit on its citizenry. The struggle has been an arduous one, and the results fully demonstrate that when one and all work together for the common good nothing short of success crowns the effort.

On the threshold of the New Year, permit us to extend to each and every one of you our most heartfelt thanks for the blessings of 1921—for the good will and confidence you have bestowed upon us.

At all times we shall endeavor to retain that faith you have placed in us by maintaining the high standards of quality, service and value to the utmost degree.

And may the year 1922 be the most prosperous and happiest in your history—for your contentment means our contentment.

PROF. SHEPPERD TELLS WHAT THE FARMERS NEED

Advocates Better Cured and More Feed, and Better Care of Livestock

SUGGESTS EXTRA SILOS

As a Cheap and Simple Method For Storing Surplus Feed

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 30.—Plans for more feed for live stock at certain definitely expected periods, a better organization of farm procedure in breeding and feeding and a firm faith that there is a bright future for the livestock industry in North Dakota is expressed in a forward to the farmers of the state by Prof. J. H. Shepperd, head of the Animal Industry department of the Agricultural College.

"At the head of the list of needs for live stock improvement," says Prof. Shepperd, "I would put better cured and more feed and better care of livestock. This state needs a better live stock focus on the part of the owner and breeder.

"When the man breeds his sows he should see the next year's feed that they are to eat and the market that they are to be sold upon and have it timed before he starts the process. It is the difference between shooting with a rifle over a rest and with a blunderbuss off hand—the one is reasonably sure to hit the mark—the other may do it. No one can make a stronger argument than the past three seasons have done to the effect that we need more feed and the strong turn of the tide toward alfalfa and corn is a move toward better feed. Extra silos, especially pit silos, offer a cheap, simple method for storing a surplus quantity of high class feed that serves the purpose well, either for summer or winter shortages.

Lack of Pasture
"A great loss comes from lack of pasture in summer. Short pastures check growth and a lack of pasture for a month or six weeks makes a poor summer's growth on young animals and cuts the milk heavily. In the case of the milk cow the reduced quantity given is not fully regained for that entire milking period and represents the heaviest loss of all the live stock producers.

"In the case of sheep a sudden change to a short ration is apt to make a weak place in the wool fibre which is a serious loss in value. Alfalfa hay that is only allowed to wilt thoroughly after mowing and is then cocked up and allowed to cure makes hay with twice the value per hundred pounds of hay that is allowed to fully dry in the swath, is raked up and thrown into the stack by means of the sweep rake. The alfalfa leaves are nearly all broken off by such a process and are lost in the stubble. Well cured alfalfa leaves with the chlorophyll left in them giving the bright green appearance have feed value almost identical with that of wheat bran. The alfalfa stems are far more woody and less digestible and are far less palatable. The loss in both features is severe.

Gains in Milk
"It is important to have live stock relish their food and so consume large quantities of it as returns in gains and in milk flow are made only after the toll of maintenance is very large fraction of the total food consumed even with the best stock and the best food taken out.

"In many parts of the state and consequently in the state as a whole, the number of live stock has been reduced, but the desire for them has on the other hand been stimulated by the outstanding fact that families who keep live stock are faring better than those who do not have them despite the low animal prices which prevail. The gain in sentiment augurs well for the future of the business. The fact that all other farm products are reduced in value keeps the courage of the stock owner from flagging. Sheep and horse stocks are the most reduced and consequently hold out better future prospects than the other classes of livestock. It is significant that despite the poor prices for wool and the general air of discouragement among sheep breeders that the ranchmen in the west are holding all full mouthed serviceable ewes off the market. A view of the sales pens in South St. Paul this fall showed, however, that many small domestic flocks were being closed out. I saw lambs year-

ROYAL COUPLE ENGAGED?

Reports from Brussels are that Prince Leopold, Duke of Brabant and eldest son of King Albert, is engaged to wed Princess Yolanda, eldest daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy. The reports have not been confirmed by any of the royal families, but have gained considerable belief in Belgian society.

These young ewes, old ewes, the flock ran and all there, showing that in a fit of discouragement the owner had ended it all by shipping the entire flock to South St. Paul.

"It takes seven years from the time of setting out to produce a work horse and all the indications are that the prices will be remunerative before that date is reached. In 1920 very few foals were produced in any horse growing region of America. In 1921 there was a little improvement but a change of mind cannot quickly replenish this class of stock. With hogs numbers can be greatly increased in 12 months time. With sheep in two years time but with horses the tide is followed but slowly recruited, seven years being the minimum.

"The present time offers unusual opportunities to the resourceful, shrewd stockman who knows his business. He can pick up breeding stock of high quality and at so moderate a price that he can, by taking thought, put himself on a much higher plane than he would do in times of less depression."

YOUNGSTOWN'S MAYOR VERY INQUISITIVE

What He Doesn't Want to Know About His City No One Can Tell

MADE POLITICAL HISTORY

Says He'll "Fire Anyone Who Doesn't Obey His Orders"

Youngstown, Ohio, Dec. 31.—George L. Oles, Youngstown's spectacular mayor-elect, arrived home recently from a vacation in Florida ready to said to "clean up the city" and "fire anyone who doesn't obey orders" when he takes office next Sunday.

Oles made political history here by running as an independent candidate, defeating the Republican incumbent by over 500 votes and the Democratic candidate by over 5,000. The city auditor received a request from Oles in Florida asking for a "thorough invoice" of the city "just as if I were going to buy it."

"I want to know how much money the city of Youngstown owes," he wrote, "whom they owe it to and when it is due. I want to know who owes the city of Youngstown. I want to know where the money is coming from to pay the bills. I want to know what stocks we have on hand, such as horse feed and supplies, gasoline in the tanks, stationery and ink and lead pencils, also the amount of coal—and do not forget to state the amount of cash in the bank."

Shortly after the balloting Mayor Fred J. Warnock, defeated for re-election, issued a 2,000-word statement citing court decisions in an effort to show that Oles' promise to give his salary to charity constituted a bribe to the poor, and therefore disqualified him. Petitions to the courts were prepared, but were dropped and no contest now is in sight.

Oles went into the produce business in New Castle, Pa. 20 years ago with a wheelbarrow and a barrel of potatoes as his sole stock in trade. After he had built up a flourishing business there in five years time he sold it to start a market in Youngstown, to be run on what he called a psychological principle. Oles began presenting eccentric newspaper advertising, based, he says, on Billy Sunday's evangelistic tactics, which he had seen in New Castle. Slam-bang talk about women's styles, his competitors, local politics and current topics soon won him a reputation.

During the mayoralty campaign Oles announced in his "ad" one day that he was going to run for mayor.

"I just started it for a joke," he said later. "But people took it seriously and pretty soon I took it seriously too."

At length Oles moved into a Youngstown hotel from his country home, to establish a legal residence, and began to give Youngstown its most spectacular political campaign. There was no organization by precincts and wards, but he and his wife held meetings all over the city—meetings for women only at which Mrs. Oles told what a fine husband and father Mr. Oles is, and meetings for men at which Mr. Oles rushed on the platform with arms in the air, shouting: "Here I am! Vote for Oles!"

Few persons professed to believe that Oles had a chance until the returns began to come in election night. Next day a check on admissions by various men who had challenged Oles to wagers brought out the fact that by taking all bets he could make enough to pay his campaign expenses and give himself and his family a trip to Florida.

At various times during the campaign Oles announced the following platform planks:

Discontinuance of street car service, and turning over the streets to jitneys.

Firing the whole police force if it didn't clean up the town.

Permit snooping in parks under police protection.

Jail anyone who paid taxes under a recent revaluation.

were indications that Oles was considering conservative policies. Questioned about "firing" various officials whom he had named in the campaign he said he would have to inquire into the law. Concerning the street car plank, he said that the traffic problem was knotty, and required a great deal of study. Asked as to jailing tax-payers he said after election that he would jail anyone who broke the law.

895,715 TONS OF COAL MINED IN N. D. IN 1921

Was 16,746 Tons More Than
That Mined a Year Ago

436 MORE MEN EMPLOYED

Miners Worked An Average Of
121 Days to Produce
This Coal

North Dakota came close to ranking with the states producing a million tons of coal for the year closing Oct. 31, 1921, according to the report of Mine Inspector John Hanwell, submitted to Governor R. A. Nestos recently. The total amount of coal mined in the state in the period was 895,715. This amount was an increase over the amount mined for the preceding annual period of 16,746 tons. The added production gave work to 436 additional men. The valuation of the 1921 coal over that of 1920 was $297,116.10.

The report for this year covered the operations of 125 mines, fourteen more than reported for a year ago. While a large number of new mines were opened in the state during the period, few of them reached the stage where their production affected the output to a large extent and the state increase of 16,000 tons is largely from the well established mines. In producing this coal, miners worked an average of 121 days, or practically one day for each three throughout the year.

One of the interesting sidelights in the report is the number of mines employing a single miner, twenty-two of these being listed. Some of these one man mines, however, are not reported as producing coal. The Weinandy Coal Company with 288 days work for its one miner and 1,261 tons produced is the largest in output. The Bowman Coal Company with 240 days work for its single miner and an output of 754 tons stands second.

In contrast to the one man mines, the pit at Washburn, declared by many to be the largest lignite mine in the United States produced 240,804 tons, valued at three quarters of a million dollars, while the mine at Benlah and the Lucky Strike mine had 66,618 and 55,450 respectively.

Conditions in the mines are generally reported as good in the report of the inspector. While the records of accidents is not considered as complete because the records of the mine inspectors office were destroyed in the burning of the Northwest hotel, once the Sheridan house, four fatal accidents occurred during the year.

The North Dakota State Historical Society Library receives a copy of all the documents printed by the United States government. The government publishes every month hundreds of books and pamphlets on many subjects, some of which are given away for the asking, and other sold at a small price. The State Historical Society Library is what is known in Washington as a "Deposition Library," that is it receives a copy of everything the government publishes without asking for it and without paying for it but agrees with the government to keep the material arranged in order and accessible for the use of any one who may wish to consult it.

The Historical Society Library is open daily except Sunday and holidays.

WHEAT TO TAKE PLACE OF MONEY

Budapest, Dec. 31.—Wheat as a stabilizing unit of exchange instead of money based on imaginary reserves of gold or silver, was suggested by Secretary of State Vician to the Syndicate of Hungarian Farmers at a recent meeting.

He proposed that banknotes of the value of a "quintal" or 320 pounds of wheat, be issued. Wheat as a standard of value already has received some recognition. Many farm leases are made on that basis and, in the new agrarian reform measures, taxes have been specified as payable in wheat-values.

FAIR SHAKE ASKED FOR EDUCATION

N. D. Spends Little For Education Compared with Amusements, Sweets, Rouge, Etc.

LUXURIES EXPENSIVE

Cosmetics and Perfumes Cost
N. D. Almost as Much as Its Teachers

North Dakota spends three times as much for its combined amusements, sweet moth, thirst and complexion as it does for education if the comparisons for the federal revenue year of 1920 and the fiscal school year of 1919-1920 hold good. During 1920, according to compilation from the amount of federal luxury taxes paid, the state spent $25,210,735 for admission to shows and games; $480,138 for candy; $13,443,953 at the soft drink emporiums, and $5,094,653 for cosmetics and perfumes. The total of the four items is $44,229,685. Education for 1919-20 cost $12,716,526.65.

The luxury figures are an estimate, based upon the amount of taxes paid in the four classes. The assumption has been that the government did not receive taxes upon all goods sold, this being one of the principal arguments for the repeal of the so-called nuisance tax, the repeal going into operation with the first of the year.

According to the figures given out by Miss Minnie Nelson, state superintendent, in the years compared, cosmetics and perfumes cost North Dakota almost as much as its teachers. Instruction that year cost the state $6,238,254.79. Cosmetics and perfume cost a million less. The half million spent for candy, $480,138 to be exact is not far from the total of the combined salaries and expenses of the 11,275 school officials and the interest on school bonds, $220,683.16 for the former and $274,722 for the latter.

The government lists the automobile as a luxury and adds the cost of the auto to the $22,700,000,000 which it declares this country spends for luxuries. In North Dakota, the auto license tax for 1920 was within $200,000 of the transportation item for North Dakota's consolidated schools, the auto tax being $474,354.05 and the cost of transportation $276,376.10.

Times have changed but little Miss Nelson believes in 1920 and by the side of the figures of North Dakota's leisure expenditures, she has placed a saying of Poor Richard in 1758:

"Friends, the taxes are indeed very heavy, and, if those paid by the government were the only ones we had to pay, we might more easily discharge them; but we have many others, and much more grievous ones to some of us. We are taxed twice as much by our idleness, three times as much by our pride, and four times as much by our folly; and from these taxes the commissioners cannot ease or deliver us, by allowing an abatement."
